TODAY'S BIG SPECIAL at a price that will open your eyes (and pure)

Tr you're in the market for a real buy, take a I good look at this one.

It's a 1956 Buick Special-which means, of course it's a big car.

But look again at the price news it carries.

It tells you this big Buick Special can be yours for only a few dollars more than the price of the well-known smaller cars—for even less than some models of those very same cars. (And the price we'll show you proves how true that is.)

The gospel truth is-this brawny new beauty is the biggest bundle of high style and hot performance ever offered in Buick's lowest-priced Series.

Even that, though, doesn't completely explain why Buick outsells every car in America except the two well-known smaller ones.

To understand the big reason, you've got to know something about how much pure automobile you get for your money in a 1956 BuickThe extra satisfaction of commanding Buick's walloping new 322-cubic-inch V8 engine -

The extra joy and comfort of Buick's new buoyant ride, Buick's matchless new handling ease, Buick's extra solidity of structure-

The extra thrill that comes from the world's most modern transmission. For, at your option, you can also have the new double-action take-offand the extra gas-saving mileage - of Buick's advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflow.

Those are some of the things we'd like you to know, firsthand, about the 1956 Buick. And we'll let the car itself - and that low price tag-do the talking. Will you come in-real soon-this week

New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century-optional at modest extra cost on the

To Our Dentists!

Wittily it has been said that dentists are the men who put teeth in our longer-life expectancy. How true that is, every man and woman in this community knows. Your dentist is a sincere specialist. Oral hygiene is his life's work. He knows the bone structure and diseases of your teeth as scientifically as your physician knows the most sensitive tissues of your body. Equipped with years of schooling and practice, not to mention his considerable investment in most-modern instruments for dental surgery, your dentist is a contributor to your health and happiness. ### Status Of Indian Creates Dilemma

There has been periodic agitation in Congress for many years to give the American Indian his complete freedom by removing all traces of government supervision. The feeling that Indians are overdue for full citizenship has been spreading throughout the political world and that it may not be long before action along this line is forthcoming.

Strange as it may seem, the Indians themselves are uncertain whether they want to give up government supervision and the various benefits that go with it. They do not relish the idea of paying property taxes, from which they are now exempt. Many of them insist that if they are granted their "freedom," it should be with the understanding that the "benefits" of full taxation are not extended to them for at least five years.

Others insist they should never be required to pay property taxes, as a compensation for the lands "stolen" from them in pioneer days. Some of the more cynical Indians have resigned themselves to expect the worst, contending it doesn't matter to the government what they think any-

There are few who will deny the Indian problem is an unsavory one, demanding attention. But there are also few who are able to suggest any possible remedies. The reason there has been so little action to date is the inability of Congress to formulate a constructive approach to the answer. It's one of those peculiar dilemmas which develop when everyone is agreed on a principle, but not on the method of carrying it out.

Undoubtedly, one reason for the indecision is the unenthusiastic response the Indians themselves give to all proposals to change their status. They have been supervised by the government so long that gaining complete citizenship would be like learning to walk.

Give-Aways

As we are not getting an income tax cut, we ought to be taking a good look at the amounts which we, taxpayers are putting out for the various give-away programs of our government. For 20 years, the Republicans were very critical of the Democrats who were redistributing the wealth of our people by the process of taxation. The Republicans called it creeping socialism, a term invented by Herbert Hoover and generally employed as descriptive of the latter Roosevelt and Truman administrations. Creeping socialism was a campaign slogan in 1952.

So in 1952, the people elected a Republican president, either because Eisenhower was personally popular or because the people were tired of creeping socialism. Whichever it was, the give-away both in foreign and internal welfare has not only continued unabated but is increasing, and maybe in 1956, it will be the Democrats who will complain about creeping socialism.

Various welfare expenditures were started because of the depression and it was generally assumed by the citizens that they would taper off or cease altogether if we ever got prosperous. At any rate it was hoped that our income taxes would not always be so high that no matter how much we earned, we generally would come out at about the same place after taxes. Certainly peace and prosperity ought to be related to eash on hand. However, in 1954 (the latest available checked figure) the people of the United States spent $10,500,000,000 on various welfare activities of the federal and state governments which is about twice as much as they spent in 1946 just after World War II was supposed to be over. It is estimated that next year, it will cost about one billion dollars more. It

Another point to be made is that when everybody talks about booms and prosperity and how good things are, there are still millions on relief. Why are they on relief if there is full employment? One of the most outrageous and immoral reasons is that industry will not employ persons over 45, not because they are not valuable workers but because they are too costly for pension funds. It is a thoroughly dishonorable business and the Forty Plus Clubs fight for their people, but in the end, as they grow older, they only too often have to go on relief which does no one any good.

Relief for the needy runs to about $3,000,000,000 a year of government money, which does not include private charity to which the American people contribute more generously than any other on earth. Congress ought to investigate all limitations upon employment to discover if the rules are arbitrary and imitative or if there are any

One of the big costs, running to just under $5,000,-000 a year, is veterans pensions, which item includes medical care and what is called education. This is going to stay with us for a long time and will probably increase from year to year. Also if we find more "police actions" on behalf of the United Nations, we shall undoubtedly have more veterans and more pensions. The Hoover Commission has got itself into quite an argument with veteran organizations such as the American Legion over the use of veterans' hospitals by veterans all their lives and by their families. This question will be fought out on the floors of Congress, but it is doubtful whether the use of such hospitals will be limited too severely to those who came by their disabilities in the service of their nation or by over-eating barbecued spareribs and other items that the gall bladder resists.

Politics is only too often governed by the give-away, and members of Congress fear to vote against any changes in the present situation. State governments which pay out to families on relief, millions of them, cannot consider the subject objectively because of the size of the relief vote and those who believe that the state must guarantee a living to those who cannot find employment or who will not accept employment but who are able to work for a living. This is a social complex that will have to be taken seriously someday

U.S. policy in the Near East has been confused is the fact that the National Security Council has been split wide open over what steps to take in case the Israeli-Egyptian dispute flares into an all-out conflagration.

The Navy, which has drawn heavily on Arabian oil in the past, wants to take strong action to preserve future oil. So does the Air Force, which has an important base at Dhahran.

But the Army feels differently, and so does John Foster Dulles. The Army, which had to take the main beating in Korea, is worried about getting bogged down on the desert sands in a preventive police action into which the Russians would throw countless Moslem "volunteers" similar to the Chinese volunteers which did the major fighting in Korea.

Secretary Dulles has similar fears. Having claimed credit for getting the United States out of one war in Korea, he doesn't want to get the United States into a police action which might degenerate into war - especially just before election. Dulles, therefore, argues that if Allied forces are sent to the Near East, Britain should carry the chief burden - at least until the United Nations takes official ac-

The mystery of the message from Prime Minister Eden to the President which Ike said he didn't get is still intriguing diplomats. No solution is in sight.

However, here are some background facts which may shed a little light. On March 25, I reported that the prime minister had sent a secret message warning that war seemed certain in the Near East in 60 days. He urged that the United States and England stand to-

On April 2, Joseph Alsop carried a somewhat similar, more detailed report from London. Later, the British foreign office confirmed the message. The State Department has also admitted unofficially that this and other similar messages were received. This particular message was delivered to Walworth Barbour, U. S. minister in London, Downing Street where Eden scrawled out the letter to Ike in his own handwriting.

My State Department sources say categorically that this message was given to the President; further, that all messages from Prime Minister Eden are immediately delivered to the White House. There have, however, been many messages, and Ike may have been confused by the idea of a "recent" message since the Eden letter was then about two weeks old.

Other Snafus State Department officials also recall some other important snafus involving messages that were sent to the White House.

In the fall of 1953 when Ike was on a "work-and-play" sojourn at Denver, the State Department sent him a personal letter from Chancellor Adenauer of Germany. This happened to be a letter which the State Department had asked Adenauer to write Ike, suggesting an old-clothes drive in the United States for East German refugees escaping to West Germany. Eisenhower never answered Adenauer's letter. It lay around Denver for three weeks, so long that the State Department decided to forget the whole business.

Last October in Denver, Ambassædor Henry Cabot Lodge, arriving from the United Nations to report to the stricken President, told newsmen he had informed Eisenhower of the French walkout from the U.N. over Algeria. But on November 21 when Ike held his first cabinet meeting at Camp David. Md., the President was heard to exclaim: "Do you mean to say that the French just got up and walked out of the Assembly?' Three unidentified men tried to discredit Senator Kefauver at the Nebraska Women's Club convention in Omaha. The three men sent an urgent, scribbled note to Kefauver while he was speaking, informing him that ex-president Truman was coming to the meeting and that Kefauver should announce it. Kefauver refused to make the phony announcement, had one of his hostesses call Truman's office in Kansas City. The note was a pure hoax.

Truman, Essaying Comeback, Helps Republicans

By David Lawrence

Baering Down on The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Didn't get anybody's invitation during the fruit and berry season

WASHINGTON - Eleven years ago to the day Harry S. Truman was starting his career in the White House. He was a humble man, awed by the responsibilities of his office. He reached a high degree of popularity because he seemed to be interested in the public welfare rather than in politics.

But ambition soon seized him, and he began to listen to and accept as gospel what politicians and organization bosses told him. He dispensed favors to his cronies and made a sorry record in allowing important officials in the Internal Revenue Department, which collects the nation's taxes, to go unpunished for their misdeeds.

Truman Tries Comeback Out of this and other came the 1952 campaign cry of the "Mess in Washington." One of the biggest complaints was about the corruption in the different departments of government where favors were given to special interests-even to the point of quash-ing prosecutions.

Today Mr. Truman is trying a comeback. He has taken to the stump, assuming that the American people have forgotten why they voted so overwhelmingly against his administration in November 1952. For, while General Eisenhower was popular, he never would have won the election if the people had not been deeply dissatisfied with the incumbent administration. It was a negative verdict - against the party in power. The country knew little about what the Republican policies would be, and cared less. For three years, the Democrats have had a chance to divert the attention of the public from the mistakes of the past but now Mr. Truman, fortunately for the Republican strategists, is out making speeches stirring up memories of "Trumanism" and all that it connotes. Thus, the former President in his latest speech proudly boasts: "I know what I am talking about. I had to fire some pretty important people while I was pres-

Who were those "important people?" Certainly, Henry Wallace was one of them and the whole truth about the episode wasn't revealed at that time. Mr. Truman claimed he hadn't approved a speech by Mr. Wallace delivered in New York at Madison Square Garden. But Mr. Wallace now testifies that Mr. Truman heard thing, he has a chance to learn the speech read to him paragraph the nature of the charges, so he or by paragraph and did approve.

Yet such a distinguished servant of the people was fired without so much as the courtesy of an advance notification. General MacArthur found out about his dismissal from a radio announcement.

But the fact is that Mr. Truman was defiant of all rules of government as well as courtesy. He believed in one-man government. Early in 1952 he ordered the entire steel industry seized. although there was not a single statute permitting it. The Supreme Court later denounced the action as a violation of the Constitution.

Mr. Truman in boasting in his speech about how he fired "important people" was advising Mr. Eisenhower to fire Secretary of Agriculture Benson. But the difference is that President Eisenhower recognizes sincerity and honesty and doesn't feel that Mr. Benson should be fired for his policies unless they are proved wrong. The White House is supporting the Benson policies. Truman No Longer Humble.

More speeches by Mr. Truman will be helpful to the Republicans, because they will awaken memories of what the Truman administration stood for. The President's secretary, James Hagerty, speaking for Mr. Eisenhower, commented: "I don't believe that Mr. Truman by his own standards can recognize accomplishment when he sees it.

There was a time when Mr. Truman was humble, but today he believes in "give 'em hell" speeches. He misjudges the intelligence of the electorate if he thinks such a technique will be effective for the Democrats against Dwight Eisenhower, whose sincerity and honesty have so favorably impressed the American people.

complacent, prosperous America. Two points stand out like sore thumbs. On the one hand, the Atlantic Alliance that guards the freedom of the West is already rather deeply undermined. The walls and bastions still stand. The fortress looks impregnable. But any fairly sharp ear can already catch the sound of the Communist engineers driving their tunnels underground, to bring down the walls in ruin.

sounding like a gloomy lunatic in

On the other hand, this undermining of the Atlantic Alliance is going forward so successfully only because the policy-makers in Washington seem to be incapable of any firm decision about the right way to stop it. It cannot be stopped, unfortunately, by a combination of hoping for the best and vaguely appealing to the United Nations.

Anyone who says these things must sound a bit cracked at home because, as one rather desperate and weary British leader remarked to this reporter, "In Washington, they not only don't tell the truth to one: nowadays they don't even seem to tell the truth to one another." Yet the threat to the Atlantic Alliance is not mysterious or hidden. On the contrary, it can #### be very simply described. An Unthinkable Turning

In brief, this country, the second partner in the Atlantic Alliance, ise utterly dependent on Middle Eastern oil. Once deprived of the oil from the Middle East, Britain will be irremediably bankrupt. Being bankrupt, Britain will perforce lay down the heavy burden of Western defense in NATO and elsewhere. And in these circumstances, Britain may perhaps take the kind of political turning that now seems unthinkable.

The poisons endlessly engendered by the Arab-Israeli conflict were already quite dangerous enough, before the Soviet intervention in the Middle East. The Soviet offer to arm Egypt and other Soviet action in the Middle East have given a powerful new impetus and a wholly new selfconfidence to Arab nationalism. which is now typified and quite largely led by the able Egyptian Premier. Lt. Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser. The surge of Arab nationalism is in turn immediately directed, as the Kremlin intended, against what remains of the old British imperial position in the Middle East.

London's first reaction has been to try to prop up the old familiar order by any means available and at all costs. That is the real ex-

> The policy towards which London is tending means, in effect, fighting Arab nationalism all-out and without quarter, with the Soviet Union on the other side. The British government has come close to a firm commitment to this really awesomely risky policy, which would initially take the form of a determined attack on the position of Col. Nasser in Egypt. If one may venture a guess, it seems likely that a firm commitment was only prevented by the urgent representations of the British Ambassador in Egypt, Sir Humphrey

Trevelyan. Needed: Leadership

Even from this angle of vision, the policy of trying to crush the new Arab nationalism does not look practical. There are alternative policies, all of them variants of the main theme of trying to come to terms with Arab nationalism. But these alternatives are not practical either, unless the United States boldly and constructively takes the leadership. Above all Washington must promise in plain terms to reinsure London against the risks that may be involved in a new way of doing business in the Middle East .

Washington is plainly trying to dodge this alarming responsibility, taking refuge in empty optimism and bland generality. Altogether the present situation strongly recalls the first stage of the Iranian oil crisis, which was a foretaste of this one. This time, however, the risks are immeasurably greater than they were when Mossadegh became a name familiar to the

This time all the Middle East is involved, rather than just one corner of it. This time, moreover, the drift in Washington is extremely likely to cause the British to drift, in their turn, into the policy that already tempts them. But when and if the British finally commit themselves to all-out opposition to Arab nationalism, our own policy makers are due for a sad awaken-

For the British have nowhere near the resources now needed to carry through such a policy successfully. Britain is just as important to the United States, in a strategic sense, as Middle Eastern oil is to Britain in an economic sense. And if the British go in over their depth, we shall have the unpleasant choice between going in ourselves to bail Britain out, or letting Britain founder, and so permitting the Atlantic Alliance to founder, too.

1957 Grid Game NEW YORK, April 16 (P)-The 1957 Army-Notre Dame football game will be played in Philadel phia's Municipal Stadium and not in New York's Yankee Stadium, Mayor Wagner said today.

The New York mayor made the announcement after a meeting with Lt. Gen. Blackshear M Bryan, superintendent of the U.S. Military Academy, and George Weiss, general manager of the New York Yankee baseball club, Wagner said he sought to intercials in staging the game in New York but that Philadelphia won out because it could offer greater seating capacity. The Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia, site of the Army-Navy

THE FORCING PASS

IT IS not enough for bridge players to recognize their part- could have done a little better by ner's forcing bids-they must also recognize a forcing pass. The following hand illustrates this important point.

South dealer. North-South vulnerable.

The bidding: West South North East Pass Pass Pass Pass Pass Pass Pass

When North passed on the last round, thereby letting East virtually steal the hand, South could scarcely contain his disgust, and should have been easy for him to his mood did not improve when East went down one trick. East ruffed South's second lead in spades, drew trumps and then without difficulty by South's usestablished the club suit. South ing two trump entries in dummy shifting to diamonds and driving out East's king, but in any case East's honors would have made it a shallow victory for North-South.

Today The fact was, of course, that North paid too much attention to his own miserable holding and far too little attention to the 9:00-2-Mark Evans clear implications of South's bidding. South, even after having Wayne Griffin The Way Gene Autry been warned by North's pass to one spade that he could not expect any support, had jumped to four spades over East's three hearts, and moreover he had followed this course in full knowledge (presumably) of the respective vulnerability. It was unthinkable, then, that in passing to five hearts, South had intended to surrender. Very obviously, his only intention could have been to let North decide between a double of five hearts and 11:00-4-Home persistence to five spades. Since North had no values whatever against hearts but did have trump support for South, it choose a raise to five spades; and 12:00-2-Valiant Lady that contract, if allowed to stand, would have been made
